WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 28 1923

When All Else Fails.
 Having tried almost every conceivable kind of government, Germany is now getting along without any for the time.

Lack of Courage.
 It is evident to plain terms that the Greenfield government has never had the courage of its supposed convictions on the liquor question. Its latest attempt to get some outside party to take a vote on it, and then to let it, is the whole course of conduct. The government hasn't even spunk enough to say what the voters want after spending a quarter of a million dollars to find out.

Another "General" Strike.
 The Royal commission which was appointed to inquire into the cause and character of the recent strike of Nova Scotian coal miners has found something. Documentary evidence has been produced to prove that the leaders of the disturbance were in active communication with the Soviet at Petrograd, and that the main object of the movement was to overthrow the existing order of things and set up a Bolshevik "paradise" on the Lenin model. There will be denials, no doubt, as there always are, but the facts of world revolution are caught with the goids, but their conduct accords too well with the intent to make white-washing easy.

The Opposition With Baldwin.
 In two hundred more British constituencies there are to be three-cornered contests. That is the direct result of the plank in the Labor party platform which called for a general strike. With that suicidal proposal the Liberals will have nothing to do. But for it the Liberal and Labor parties would probably have formed a fighting alliance in defense of free trade and the money system, as is present a candidate of only one group in the field against a government supporter. The government, of course, has the advantage where its opponents are divided, and it is to be expected with the Liberal and Labor candidates splitting the house vote in two hundred constituencies, its protectionist proposals must be about as unpopular as they could be.

The C. N. R. Project.
 It is good news that the management of the Canadian National railways propose to carry out the extensive improvements on the line from Edmonton to the east within the next five years. The streamlining discussed this week by the general manager of the system and the members of the city council, covers one of the most important problems of the railway of the city. While a definite time limit is to be set for the completion of the undertaking, no hope is held out that the work will be put in hand before an early date. The railroads will have to be forced into hand to secure the sanction of parliament before the expenditure can be made. As the city has not the money to meet its half of the cost of the disbursements, the temporary postponement will be somewhat modified. In these days garments have to be cut according to the amount of cloth on hand, and neither the railway nor the city is in position to lay claim to costly improvements off-hand.

Hold-Up Harbor Dues.

The Harbor Board of Vancouver is requested to ask the government to raise the scale of harbor dues on grain, so as to bring that port from one cent per ton to ten cents per ton. Stated in that way the matter does not appear to be one with which the people of the city are particularly concerned. They are, however, parties very decidedly interested in the proposal; interested because they stand in the position of those who will have to pay the increased cost of the port. The charges imposed upon a vessel for using a harbor form one item in the operating expenses, and are taken into account in and are paid by the carrier for carrying cargo. Alberta wheat is now going to the markets of the Orient and of Europe by way of Vancouver in large quantities. The greater the demand, the greater will be affected if the Vancouver harbor dues are boosted, and the price paid to the producer will be correspondingly dependent. The extra nine cents per ton will fall out of the pockets of the ship owners, but from those of the Alberta wheat growers. They cannot be collected upon the over-owners of wheat because the present Vancouver port price obtained by shipment via that port, is fixed by competition. Alberta is therefore very directly and materially affected in this respect, an increase in the cost of marketing one of its stable grain crops. The increase it is claimed would impose an additional tax of nearly one cent per bushel, and that is not all that port. Vancouver hopes to handle fifty million bushels or more of the Alberta crop, and the greater the level would be elsewhere, the market value of a half million dollars.

That is the amount that the Alberta growers will lose if the projected increase is made. A half million bushels less than one-half of the wheat crop of the province is quite sufficient to cause the provincial authorities and public bodies in this province to sit up and take notice, and to take such an effort as is possible to prevent it. A similar tax would of course be imposed upon oats, barley or any other kind of grain, and the same effect would be subject to a like penalty, and the producers to a corresponding shrinking in the production.

For years British Columbia and Alberta have been fighting to secure reduced freight rates. Alberta and other field products shipped westward to the end that the western route might be made in fact what nature intended it to be, the great artery of commerce of the province to the world's principal port of the Pacific coast. Butter and all other commodities originating on the Alberta farm would be subject to a like penalty, and the producers to a corresponding shrinking in the production.

As far as British Columbia and Alberta have been fighting to secure reduced

freight rates, there is no one iota to the farmer whether an excessive charge goes to the railway or to the harbor board. He is in either case to pay extra, and the same rule applies upon his fortunes. A few weeks ago the Railway Commission reduced the freight rates on Alberta wheat to Vancouver, and a reduction of a cent and a half per bushel. That reduction was by no means as large as was hoped for, or as large as should have been made. But it was hailed as a real and in doing so it will have the solid support of the people who are scheduled to be rebuffed for better cause than that Vancouver thinks it has them at its mercy.

As a boy one of my earliest sporting reminiscences was hearing of the chase of La Belle France, the famous hunting dog of Louis XIV, and "Our" god. Then came much muddied Irish pony over the south-eastern prairies, and the gauntlet down the hills of New South Wales, while in our own north the gallant cavalcade of lords and ladies with exclamations of "Ollie la! Let's go!"

Therefore, I said to the boys, "If little o' men come and we'll crack the wily rabbit to his master and daughter, then we'll have a good time for our fun."

Horse Sleds Take Turkeys and Gifts North for Country Christmas

Those Edmontonians daring to send turkeys and plum puddings to friends in the far country for the Christmas season had better get in touch with Mickey Ryan. His present address is "Somewhere North of Fifty-Two."

Following his pioneer success last season in keeping communities supplied with turkeys by means of horse-drawn sleds in place of the dogsleds going to the north, the present year, with a string of horses each attached to a dog sled, Mickey Ryan is now off for Mackay, Chippewyan, Fitzgerald and Fort Smith.

Running horse sleds on the Athabasca is no particular fun when the horses are not used to the cold, the sight, and the horses have to stand all night long. But the "toughies" on the equines despite the care taken of them; barns are to be found in the north, however, and a plentiful of hay has already been accumulated at the various camping places.

Mr. Ryan uses the smaller of his teams for the first trip north, but the same six fought the snow drifts through the cold weather to the point where they were stuck on the Fort Smith portage, but came out again to bring back the supplies. In camp the snow is shoveled away from where they are tied up in the troughs, and the horses are well fed and watered. Mickey Ryan is on duty all night to see that they do not eat their coverings.

Like the "old-timers," who boasts twenty years of usefulness, headed northward and the north were in doubt as to the time the master was left to the majority of the horses.

"I am sanguine," he said, "that in a few days we will be in the land in every line."

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE

MONTREAL Nov. 26.—"This morning I took my life," Charles Windsor, 26, of this city, to his wife before sunrise, as he handed her a self-inflicted bullet wound to the head.

Fifteen minutes later he was found dead in his room, having been with his wife from whom he was living apart, but this was not effected.

CHARACTER STARTS BIG FIRE

CHARLOTTEVILLE, F.I.L., Nov. 26.—The act of a fourteen year old boy, who had been playing through a broken window on to a pile of shavings, started a fire which destroyed a house and a door factory at a loss of $20,000 and caused the late arrival of the fire department.

He was born in the United States and is the son of a man who worked with his wife from whom he was living apart, but this was not effected.

KILLED BY FALL OF ROCK

NANAIMO, B.C., Nov. 26.—James Clegg, 25, was recently brought to a hospital, the man being owned by the Western Fuel Corporation.
